

Infinite runners like Flappy Bird and Temple Runner

- Tetris for a certain time limit and clear

- Sliding block puzzle
- 5 x 5 jigsaw puzzle(EHH)
- Tic Tac Tow(?)
- Filling cabinet with many paper works that are classified into different categories
 - Randomly shuffle "files" that the player must reorder within a time limit, only to have them shuffled again after completion.
 - One row of cabinet with 1'st level starred doc, 2nd level cc'ed from others, 3rd spam
 - Paper works with star, cc, spam will be dropping randomly and player has to input the correct level of cabinet to organize them and failure to do, reduce reputation and receives less money
- Sudoku
- email sorting/trashing all the spam mail, recognizing emails from your boss or team members, and saving or starring
 - Players must sort incoming emails into the correct folders (e.g., "Spam," "Important," "CC for No Reason").
- Printer Troubleshooting
 - Concept: The boss tells the player to "fix" a malfunctioning office printer
 - This happens like a special event (randomly)
 - Why it's boring: The player has to go to the printer distanced from his desk; unhelpful prompts like "Error 402: Paper Not Found." pop up when the player interacts with it.
 - Minigame: The player drags out a paper from the printer or drags a pile of papers onto the printer to add papers.
 - Enhancement Idea: Add a "rage quit" button that humorously locks the player out for a minute, mimicking office frustration.

- Fake Work
 - Concept: Player must to be pretending working while actually slacking off.
 - Switch the monitor screen between actual work and random browsing. (Tiktok, memes, shorts)
 - Game mechanics: If the boss is nearby or watching, the player must quickly switch their monitor to display work-related tasks. Failing to do so results in a loss of company reputation. However, the longer the player secretly watches the other screen, the more reputation or money they can earn.
- Office Gossip
 - Decide whether to spread, ignore, or twist them.
 - Their choices affect how coworkers view them (ally, neutral, enemy).
- Coffee deliver to Boss
 - Either race game in 2D is like this in the image where the character jumps over the platform or slides on the rail and dodges obstacles.
 - Or something like “Overcooked” where player need to make coffee to coworkers before they get too impatient.
 - Several requirements for each order(Sugar, milk, black coffee)

●

- Office racing
 - Where player races an office chair, avoiding obstacles stuffs like printer, coffee pot, flower pot, rushing coworkers,
 - Must reach the meeting room before the boss does.
 - Boosts are available by grabbing energy drinks.

- "Office Ninja" (Inspired by Fruit Ninja)
 - The player must swipe away annoying work tasks (emails, reports, meeting invites) before they pile up.
 - Some tasks are bombs (like "Mandatory HR Meeting") that should not be touched.
 - Challenges:
 - The boss randomly checks, if get caught slicing any work tasks, lose points. So while the boss is staring, player need to allow work tasks to pile up from the bottom, and if the work is piled over certain point, mission failed.